

What is Cloverbuds?

The 4-H Cloverbuds program is designed to build life skills which promote healthy intellectual activity, as well as social, emotional and physical development of participants. These young 4-H Cloverbuds members are distinct from older members thus creating a need for age appropriate educational programming which is intended to meet their specific needs.

It is neither the intent nor the objective of the 4-H Cloverbuds program to create "mini 4-H" members or to duplicate older 4-H member experiences. Participants in the 4-H Cloverbuds program are considered to be in a special membership category, and as a result, the Cloverbuds program differs slightly from the general 4-H program.

4-H MISSION

Through non-formal, research based, experiential education activities, 4-H members gain knowledge, leadership, and life skills enabling them to become positive, productive, capable, and compassionate members of their communities.

Organization & Participation

Iberville Parish 4-H Program Assistant, Kathy Jones, along with 4-H Youth Development agents, Shannon Dietz and Ashley Pitre are eager and striving to move the program into new and positive directions. A series of educational lessons are offered monthly to address the positive youth development applications specific to the Cloverbuds program. These lessons are designed to enhance a child's ability to become positive, contributing citizens.

History

Since 1908, Louisiana's youth have been given opportunities to become positive, productive, capable and compassionate citizens in their communities through the largest youth organization in the world known as 4-H. Louisiana 4-H is an educational program of the LSU AgCenter and is part of the National 4-H organization. 4-H is the youth development and outreach program of the nation's largest land-grant university system.

Volunteers

Four-H is a family affair! An important part of the family affair is you, the parent. As parents get involved with their children in 4-H, this interaction provides ways for the family to connect by learning new skills, sharing hands on growth opportunities, and serving the community together. By being involved in 4-H, parents can ensure the best growth experience for their child or children. Parents are encourage to join as volunteers.
